Green Company Celebrates Staying Out of the Red
Earth Friendly Products Rewards Employees for Dedication

Garden Grove, CA – May XX, 2009 – As the economy is on a downward trend, Earth Friendly Products is on the up and up with current employees as well as profits. The eco-friendly cleaning products manufacturer is pleased to announce a record breaking quarter with a one week's pay bonus to all of the company's current employees. In recognition of their employee's dedication and hard work that lead Earth Friendly Products to a mark in the company's history, all 165 permanent and temporary employees will be rewarded with a share of the profits.

In this bleak economy, companies across the nation are having enough trouble staying out of the red, let alone handing out money to the hard working employees that are keeping the company afloat. According to AACER, the Automated Access to Court Electronic Records, in the month of March 2009, there were 7,843 commercial bankruptcy filings, a 23.2% jump from the filings in February. In the first quarter of this year, over 20,000 businesses sought either Chapter 7 or Chapter 11, a 52.4% increase from 2008. Earth Friendly Products seems to be the exception to the rule with large enough products to reward all of their employees from California and Illinois to Florida and New Jersey.

"No one has control over this volatile economy," Earth Friendly Products' CEO Van Vlahakis states. "However, we have control of how we recognize the hard work of our employees in supporting and rewarding them from within during our good times and the world's hard times."
